Its aim is the development of democracy and human rights in South East Europe. It is a joint initiative by University of Sarajevo, CIS Center for Interdisciplinary Studies and University of Bologna, IECOB Institute for Central Eastern and Balkan Europe. Moreover, students take part in two academic field trips to Mostar and Srebrenica/Potočari.

RESEARCH DIMENSION

During the first term in Sarajevo, students benefit from methodology courses on academic research and writing, information retrieval, comparative analysis and data gathering techniques. Also, they undertake consultations with their potential supervisors and academic tutors about the dissertation topic.

By the end of May students are required to submit a thesis proposal to the Executive Board of the programme and to select a suitable internship partner organization for their placement and field research period.

The Executive Board, on the basis of student applications and Faculty availability approves the dissertation topic, the internship choice and the supervisor for each student. According to the educational structure of the Master, the Second Term is designated for students to acquire working experience in the field of human rights and democracy throughout the SEE, boosting their mobility and international experience, and most importantly, conducting their research and data gathering related to the MA thesis topic. In this framework, from mid-June to end of July, students take up seven-week assessed internships at selected IGOs, NGOs, think-tanks and research institutes across the region choosing from a list of over 100 partner organizations from Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Croatia, FYR Macedonia, Kosovo, Montenegro, Romania, Serbia and Slovenia.

The internship period takes place in a country other than the country of citizenship of the student. This decision aims at promotion of diversity and intercultural communication, understanding and adaptability to different working standards, which is a prerequisite for experts aiming to work in the field of human rights.

ERMA Term II is conceived to be strictly correlated with the MA thesis topic and both the choice of the country and the organization should be taken in accordance with the topic of each student's research interests and needs. The students are expected to individually choose the organization which is the most suitable to conduct their research and data gathering necessary for the MA Thesis writing process that will take place during the Term III in Italy.

At the same time, the international experience granted by the internship helps the students to develop professional expertise in an intercultural environment and promote mobility of human capital in the region. Moreover, it helps students to advance their research and analytical skills, as well as providing them with the opportunity to establish a professional network.

This placement period is aimed at fostering ERMA students' professionalization and providing the chance to apply their knowledge in the field of human rights and democracy. During the internship the students are expected to carry out their tasks with responsibility and to actively contribute to the work of the organization. The internship is worth 12 ECTS.
